The Management and Leadership Development Programme is simple and effective. The Department for Employment and Learning has brought together a comprehensive portfolio of training options to help employers meet the specific development needs of their managers and leaders at all levels.

How it works

The Management and Leadership Development Programme (MLDP) comprises a range of training and development initiatives aimed at the individual manager. The programme is open to managers at varying levels of development from first line management through to training for senior managers and directors. It addresses a range of business areas and the main themes are listed below:

- First Line Management;
- Middle Management;
- Senior Level/Director Programmes;
- Exporting Skills;
- Sales and Account Management;
- Management Skills for Technical Professionals;
- Project Management Fundamentals; and
- Mentoring.

Who can apply?

All managerial levels within Small to Medium-sized Enterprises and Social Enterprises will be considered for bursary support.

What funding is available?

The Department for Employment and Learning provides bursary support on a 50% basis to companies participating on MLDP courses.
